Birds

Jackdaws are often confused with crows.

However,
they are smaller

and the backs of their heads are grey.

Crows may be all black (carrion crows)

or grey with black heads, wings and tail (hooded crows).

They can be often spotted in parks.

Bohemian waxwings often live in coniferous forests.

They like to eat rowan berries.

Barn swallows are most common swallows in the world.

They build cup-shaped nests under barn roofs.

White storks often build their nests on electric poles.

In August, they fly south to spend the winter in Africa.

Male great spotted woodpeckers have red markings on the backs of their necks,

while young ones have the markings on their heads.

You often hear woodpeckers pecking the tree bark with their beaks.

Feral pigeons are common in cities.

The sound they make is called cooing.

Male blackbirds are black and females are dark brown.

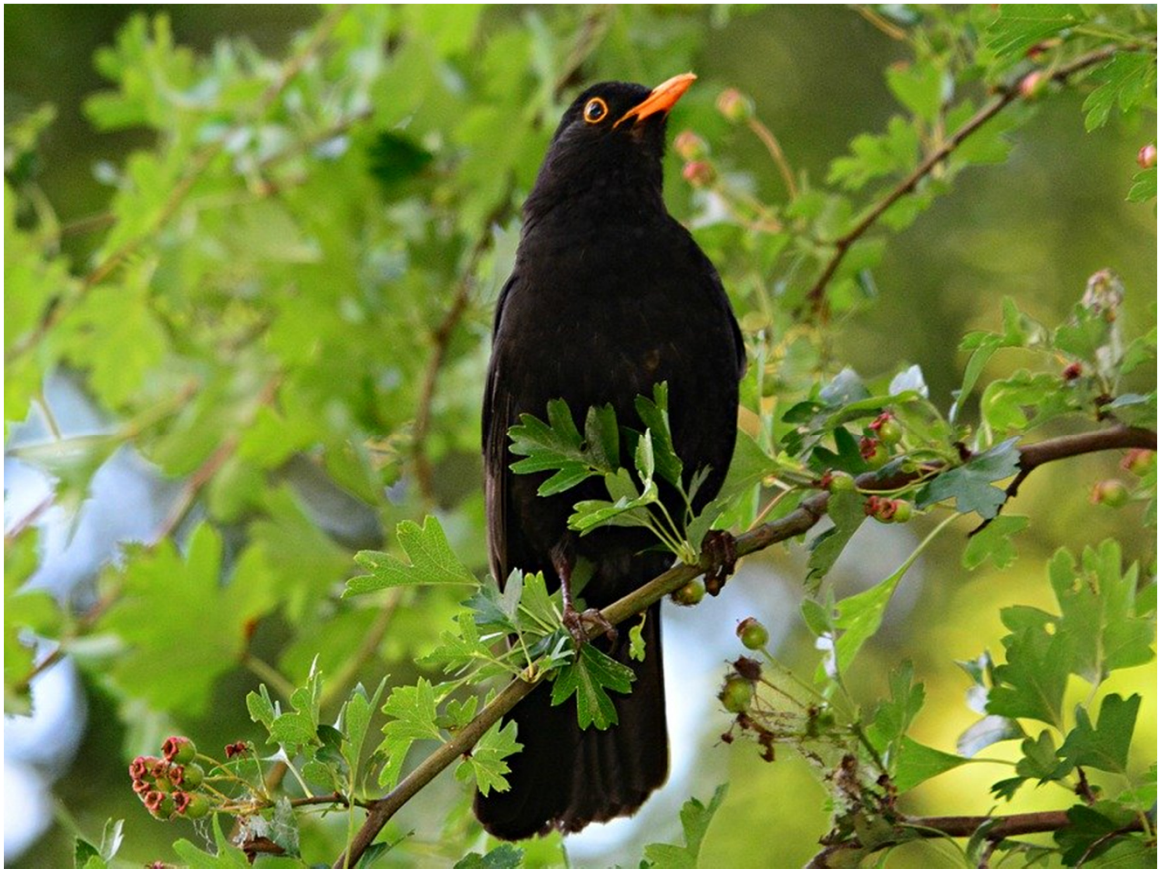
Their song is very melodious.



In Poland, blue tits can be seen all year round.

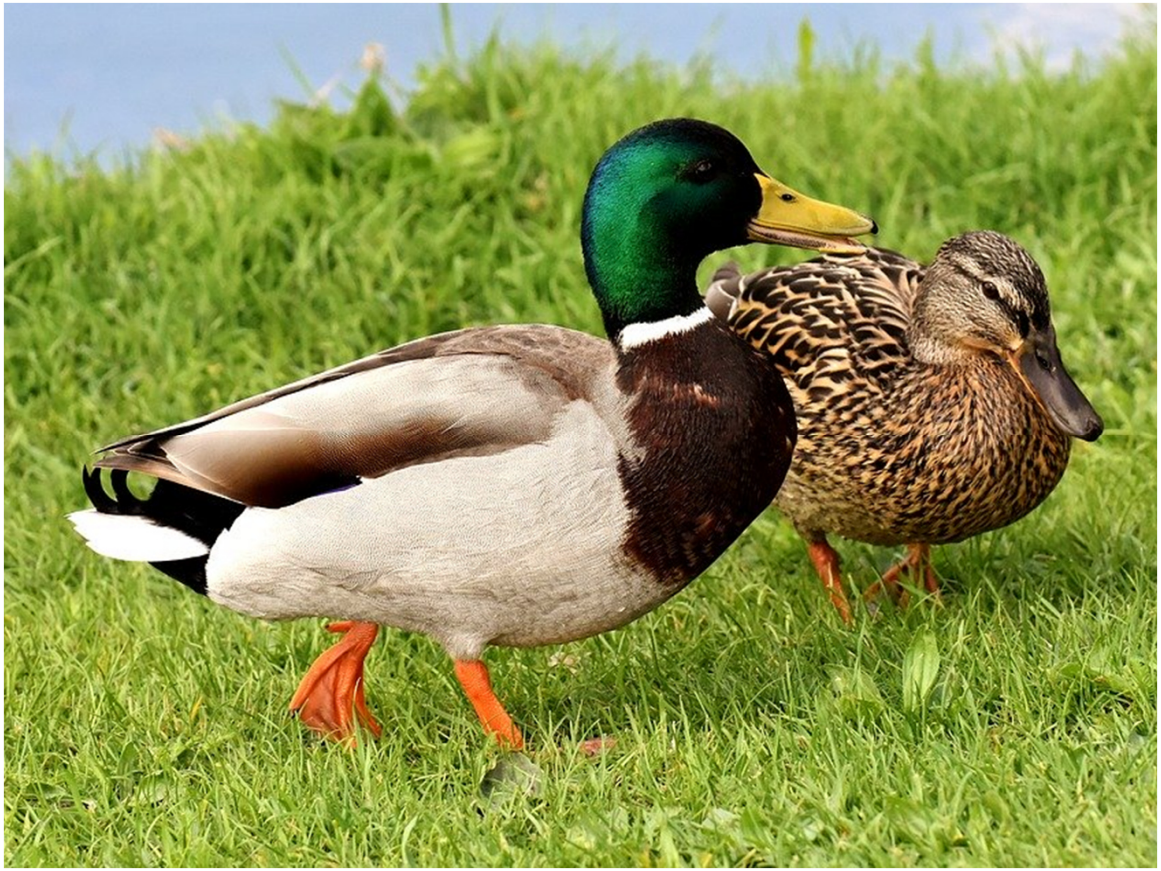
In winter, they often visit birdfeeders.

Mallards fly in a V formation.

Males and females don’t look the same –

males have green heads with white collars

while females are a mottled brown colour.



Materiały przygotowane przez autorkę bloga:
www.englishspeakingmum.pl
Wszelkie prawa zastrzeżone.

Żadna część tych materiałów nie może być kopiowana, ani w jakiejkolwiek formie reprodukowana, powielana, ani odczytywana w środkach publicznego przekazu bez pisemnej zgody autorki.
Materiały można przeglądać i drukować jedynie do użytku własnego.
Autorka dołożyła wszelkich starań, by zapewnić najwyższą jakość materiałów, jednakże nie może być odpowiedzialna za jakiekolwiek szkody wynikające z wykorzystania informacji w nich zawartych.